

Wedding Gifts for the Couple Who Have Everything

Ivanka Trump and Jarad Jared Kushner's wedding registry at Tiffany includes silver in the form of a scalloped, footed bowl, a sauce ladle and bottle stopper. Budget minded guests, if any, might consider a stylish cubist bundt-cake pan or one of four spatulas the couple selected from Williams-Sonoma.

IT is a royal wedding in real estate circles: Ivanka Trump, 27, daughter of The Donald, and Jared Kushner, 28, the New York Observer publisher whose family owns thousands of apartments and office buildings in New York and New Jersey. For something old, Ms. Trump has said she is embracing Grace Kelly's style. She has "borrowed" her father's Bedminster, N.J., golf course for the 500-person reception Oct. 25. The "blue" requirement was met by using what she told brides.com were Tiffany invitations (an insert offered guests a free round of golf at one of Mr. Trump's courses).

As for new, Ms. Trump has been chronicling her wedding plans on Twitter, starting July 16 with the announcement of her engagement (“truly the happiest day of my life!!!”). She has messaged about eating French fries before squeezing into her Vera Wang gown, meeting with her wedding planner, chanting the mantra “relax, it’s just another party, just another party, just another party ... sigh,” and being blindfolded and ushered to the Hudson River for her Aug. 22 bachelorette party. Ms. Trump told brides.com that she planned to post from her reception, something that at least one of her more than 300,000 followers, Shawn Rabideau, a New York event planner, said was not a good idea: “You should be focused on your guests.”

Those guests have been snapping up items on the couple’s registries at Tiffany, Crate & Barrel, and Williams-Sonoma. The 75 items, totaling nearly $9,000, do not include fine china — perhaps selected somewhere not glimpse-able by anyone with an Internet connection — and reflect a minimalist taste leaning toward glass and sterling.

BARGAIN HUNTING At Williams-Sonoma, the couple selected four spatulas that each cost $10 or less, along with $19.95 stackable measuring cups. They registered for a dozen 16-ounce glasses and a dozen 10-ounce glasses at Crate & Barrel ($7.95 each), but seem to have received twice that number, according to the Web site. Earlier this week, the six grasscloth lapis placemats ($4.95 each) and matching cotton lapis napkins ($3.95) were taken. These and other kitchen items should all help with preparing and serving the “tuna tartare, rack of lamb, chicken marbella, broccoli kugel, tomato crisp and fresh fruit for dessert” that Ms. Trump posted about on Sept. 25.

A SWEET TOOTH It seems someone in the family likes to bake, or to be baked for. At Williams-Sonoma, the couple registered for half-sheet pans suitable for cookies, a $36 rolling pin, a stylish $34 cubist bundt-cake pan and the kitchen mainstay coveted by many aspiring bakers, the KitchenAid Artisan stand mixer ($299.95). Mr. Rabideau said the array of baking equipment was impressive and the choice of cake pan notably stylish. “There’s a lot of baking,” marveled Mr. Rabideau. “It’s not your average bundt cake — or, as they say in ‘My Big Fat Greek Wedding,’ BOONDT cake.”

FOUR-FIGURE GIFT The most expensive thing on the couple’s three public registries is a sterling silver, scalloped, footed bowl from Tiffany, for $1,350. (They originally requested two, then cut it back to one, which has already been purchased.) There are also sterling silver picture frames, two each at $500, $415 and $295. And while two $175 silver bottle stoppers and two $325 silver cake servers had been taken, they’d love another Elsa Peretti Padova carving fork ($225), carving knife ($225) or sauce ladle ($250). Such items may seem pricey for their limited use, but Mr. Rabideau said the selections show some restraint: “She’s not registering for the Versace everyday dinner set at $1,500 a plate,” he said.
